

RECETO Postdoctoral Positions

The Research School of Environmental Chemistry, Microbiology, and Toxicology (RECETO) is pleased to announce a number of postdoctoral positions for periods of up to 6 months. RECETO is also willing to co-finance novel postdoctoral projects if other funding is available.

Applications for the positions will be judged by the following criteria:

- The proposed postdoctoral work must be part of a specific research project that is shared by two or more RECETO research groups and that targets topics within the RECETO research fields.
- The contribution of the postdoctoral candidate must be judged to be significant enough to lead to the publication of one or more papers in internationally refereed journals.
- The postdoctoral candidate must contribute during the employment period to one or more RECETO activities, such as RECETO intensive courses, symposia, or workshops, the initiation of cooperation with industry, or the development of IP material.
- The candidate should preferably arrange the postdoctoral research at a different institution than his or her Ph.D. institution.

Applications are to be submitted by the postdoctoral candidate and must contain:

- A completed application form
- See <http://www.receto.dk/Vacancies-and-Scholarships/Application-forms.aspx>
- A description of the research project, including aims, novelty, background, methods, research groups involved, and literature references (maximum three A4 pages)
- The title(s) of one or more papers to be submitted to international journals as part of the research project
- A description of the quality of the research group(s) and the cooperation
- A description of the RECETO activity to which the postdoctoral candidate will contribute, including aims, organization, and time schedule (one A4 page)
- The CV of the postdoctoral candidate and the candidate's full publication list
- A letter that confirms that the proposed activities are in accordance with the priorities of the place of postdoctoral employment.

If you have questions about the application procedure, please contact the RECETO secretariat at receto@life.ku.dk.

Applications must be submitted to the RECETO secretariat on or before March 1 and August 1 each year.

Proposals are evaluated by the RECETO Board, which makes its decision 1 month after the application deadline.
